

An Explorer's Guide to Movement

Mastering the Prepositions that Describe Direction and Path.

Your Adventure in Language Begins Here.

We'll follow our explorer as they move from one place to another, learning how prepositions give life and direction to their actions. Our journey will cover three main areas:

These are the Words that Show the Way.

Prepositions of movement are the essential words we use to describe a journey. They show how someone or something moves from one place to another, helping us describe direction, path, and the way an action travels.

Chapter 1: Leaving Home

Our journey begins with the first movements of the day, focusing on how we interact with surfaces and containers.

Entering and Exiting a Space

Into: Used to show movement to enter a place.

Example: The explorer will walk into the room.

Out of: Used to show movement to exit a place.

Example: He will run out of the house.

Moving On and Off a Surface

Onto: Used to show movement to a surface.

Example: The cat will jump onto the bed.

Off: Used to show movement away from a surface.

Example: The book will fall off the chair.

Chapter 2: Navigating the Town

Now in the town, our explorer must cross boundaries and follow new paths.

How We Cross Boundaries

Across: Movement from one side to the other of something.

**Example: Let's walk across the road.*

Through: Movement that involves going inside something and out the other side.

**Example: We have to drive through the tunnel."*

Following a Path and Moving Beyond a Point

Along: To move following a line or path.

**Example:* We walked along the beach at sunset.

Past: To move beyond a specific point.

**Example:* Walk past the shop and the park will be on your right.

Navigating Obstacles from Above and Below

Over: To move above something.

**Example:* The explorer had to climb over the wall.

Under: To move To move below something.

**Example:* The dog will crawl under the table.

Chapter 3: Exploring the Park

Finally, the park. Here, we focus on the difference between the general direction of our movement and our specific destination.

Destination versus Direction

To: Indicates a specific destination. This is where the journey ends.

Example: I am going to school.

Towards: Indicates movement in the direction of something, but not necessarily arriving there.

Example: She was running towards the gate when she saw her friend.

Moving in a Circular Path

Around: Used to describe movement in a circle or loop.

Example: Let's run around the park three times.

Your Completed Map of Movement

Leaving Home

Into
Out of Onto Off

Navigating the Town

Across
Through Along
Past
Over
Under

Exploring the Park

To Towards
Around

Continue Your Exploration

Language is a journey, not a destination. Keep practicing, keep exploring, and you'll master the path.

